

I had a dream that you were a
fountain

Sophie Lynn Morris

I had a dream that you were a fountain, connected directly to the source, and your supply never ran out, like a wellspring, or an aquifer, or a geyser. It was clean, crystal clear, pre filtered, flowing out in all directions. It's deep, but you could see the bottom so it wasn't scary. And it washed over me and my body, we could drink it and it tasted good, we held it in our mouths, we splashed around in the abundance. We tried to bottle it for later but it was like a cork holding an ocean; it flowed through our fingertips like sand. We did not know what to do with the excess so we sent it on a long journey from an underground pipe, to a river, to an ocean, flowing out in all directions, and I remember hearing waves and ocean noises, I do not remember feeling cold, we just returned it, back into the everythingness, and when they ran away from the fire they jumped in for safety.
